

Healthy NewsWorks

Building health awareness through student-written media

Your contribution to Healthy NewsWorks directly supports a community organization that each year trains more than 300 elementary and middle school students and reaches more than 6,000 children in high-needs schools.

Your tax-deductible gift will help us deliver:

- Core newspapers: Health-focused school newspapers produced by elementary and middle school student journalists under expert guidance.
- Health education: Lessons, activities, and videos to improve children's literacy and health understanding.
- Book project: A capstone project for student journalists who are ready to interview exceptional community leaders on health and safety for the next edition of our book series, Leading Healthy Change In Our Communities.

Benefits of giving

Your gift of any size will help us build health awareness among young people.

Individuals, companies, and organizations giving $150 and above receive:

- Recognition and/or logo display on our website and in our book.
- Special mailings of student work.

For a gift of $50 or more, you'll receive:

- Admission to our spring book launch celebration.
- A copy of the book.
