

HEALTHY NEWSWORKS

STUDENT JOURNALISTS TRANSFORMING
THE HEALTH OF OUR COMMUNITIES

The Leading Healthy Change In Our Communities book program, begun in 2012, expands Healthy NewsWorks' efforts to address the health, literacy, and educational needs of our school communities.

The books, which are available in print and online, and are written and illustrated by student journalists, feature profiles of leaders in the Philadelphia region who have something important to say about health and about giving back to the community. For more information, visit <https://healthynewsworks.org>.

Support Healthy NewsWorks by Donating

You can do something about the gaps in children's literacy and health understanding by becoming a Healthy NewsWorks supporter. We welcome your partnership in helping students improve their research and writing skills and learn how to make themselves and their communities healthier.

DONATE at <https://healthynewsworks.org>!

Support Healthy NewsWorks by Volunteering

Do you want to improve children's well-being and have a special skill to share? Then volunteer for Healthy NewsWorks!

Learn how by visiting our website today!

DONATE at <https://healthynewsworks.org>!

Marian Uhlman, Healthy NewsWorks Director
P.O. Box 431 | Drexel Hill, PA 19026 | Phone: 610-449-8008 | Email: muhlman@HealthyNewsWorks.org